NORWOOD, Mass., April 22, 2008 (PRIME NEWSWIRE) -- LTX Corporation (Nasdaq:LTX), a leading provider of semiconductor test solutions, today announced that DA-Test has expanded its deployment of LTX's X-Series test platform with the installation of an MX system at its Ottawa facility. The new tester adds high performance mixed signal and analog test to DA-Test's existing capabilities, and supports DA-Test's commitment to providing access to best in class test equipment for their worldwide customer base. DA-Test, Canada's leading full-service semiconductor test house, offers a broad array of test services including ATE test solution development, test related design services, test operations, product engineering services, and test technology development.

"DA-Test initially selected the X-Series test platform not only for its extensive mixed signal and RF test capabilities, but also because of its flexibility and industry leading cost of test" noted Sam Ho, President and CEO of DA-Test. "The addition of the MX configuration allows us to provide cost-effective solutions across an even wider range of applications in our customer portfolio, including devices with demanding digital test requirements such as baseband and RF SoC/SiP. This ability to target the right capability at the right cost of test is crucial to our customers' success as they progress from new product introduction to full volume production."

About DA-Test

Established in January 2002, DA-Test Inc. is the first and only independent semiconductor test house in Canada. Using leading-edge ATE equipment and tools, DA-Test provides a full range of IC test development, test related design services, test operations and product engineering services, and test technology development for semiconductor design companies, tailoring the offering to meet customer-specific needs. With over a century of semiconductor industry management experience, DA-Test's deep engineering expertise in RF, mixed signal, and high-speed digital test addresses markets including telecom, enterprise, consumer and professional electronics, and datacom. DA-Test serves a global customer base across the full breadth of semiconductor business models, from fabless semiconductor companies to integrated device manufacturers.

About LTX
